Senior plc announces multi-year contracts with Collins Aerospace – an RTX Business

Senior plc (“Senior”), an international manufacturer of high technology components and systems, today announces that it has been awarded various multi-year production contracts by Collins Aerospace (“Collins”) for the supply of precision formed and machined thrust reverser structural components for Boeing 787, Airbus A320neo and Airbus A220 aircraft. Deliveries commenced in January 2024 for Boeing and will commence January 2025 for Airbus. The total value of contracts is approximately $80m over a 10-year period.

Manufacturing is being undertaken at Senior Aerospace’s Jet Products facility near San Diego, California, USA.

Commenting on the awards, Launie Fleming, CEO of Senior Aerospace, said: “We are delighted to have been awarded these new long-term contracts from Collins Aerospace for complex structural components across Airbus and Boeing platforms. The awards are another great example of how our customers value Senior Aerospace’s manufacturing expertise, quality and on-time delivery, and they will help to deliver further growth for Senior Aerospace’s structures businesses over coming years.”
